Preface

OBVIOUS, TIME-SHAPED SYMBOLS become seemingly meaningless because we find them regularly, and everywhere. It is easy to dismiss a familiar thing, and thereby, to lose its significance. Only when we stop to examine accustomed ways, do we realize how deeply they twist, how completely they bind.

While approaching our mutual end, we return to its beginning. Our minds need to explore, and to justify; they take from the past what we have put and kept there. And if remembrances differ among us, none are less valuable than others, nor more meaningful. Slight incidents, landmarks, meeting places, tokens, phrases—they shame us with their triviality, unless the spirit underlying them be captured, identified, cherished.

Think of Montclair, and think of structures, bells, colors, and eager minds. Think of India, and imagine a mystery, as carefully hidden as the veiled face of a woman who never speaks; hear temple bells in half-sleep, or myriad beggars assailing the marketplace; picture deities adorned with strange designs; feel serenity. But, these worlds are nothing new. The pattern and the flavor, long accepted as India herself, disguise the true India, where man fails to probe behind the curtain. There, centuries of devotion to wisdom lie. Endurance and faith, humility and pride together, resignation, dignity, and intricate, passionate dreams have made this land. To perceive it is to become a disciple of all its best, in the spirit of the native youth who dedicates his existence on earth to religion, fervently, without regret.

The external character of India reflects the philosophies which are her structure. The Indian mode of life is the religious one; rituals and traditions never change. All thought directs itself to eternal matters. Within the major systems of faith—Hindu, Islam—can be seen a basic similarity. The path to a goal, what it is, where to find and how to follow it, remain the vital desire of the Indian makeup. Great weight is placed upon finding the Guide, life's wise protector. The teacher, in Indian belief, is he who has attained every best virtue, and every right road. He has passed from stage to stage, watching, absorbing, praying, striving after infinite truths. Only the teacher, then, at once immortal and mortal, having proved his achievements, can be trusted with the direction of human life.

Now, gazing into ourselves, contemplating what we have fashioned, and again testing the fine, tight weave of a distant civilization, we watch dissimilarities among men blow upward as easily as a veil stirs before breath. Here, or in India, today or a thousand years ago, man must remember his youth, lament misdeeds, choose his path, and climb toward another world. Many glance back, even as they ascend, and some reach down a compassionate hand for the faltering brother who would surrender if untouched.

*“The end, elusive and afar,
Still lures us with its beckoning flight,
And all our mortal moments are
A session of the Infinite.”*

Dedication

To CONTEMPLATE LIVING more than one life at a time is first to devise and define the levels of meaning which that phrase contains. You might say, each man lives the lives of those who travel in or through his personal orbit. In that sense, Marie Frazee, secretary to the Dean of Instruction, experiences a thousand existences. She sees the world through each of us at Montclair, whose names and faces and daily routines she knows as she knows herself. Miss Frazee hears our troubles, wrestles our conflicts, answers our questions, with incredible competence and serenity.

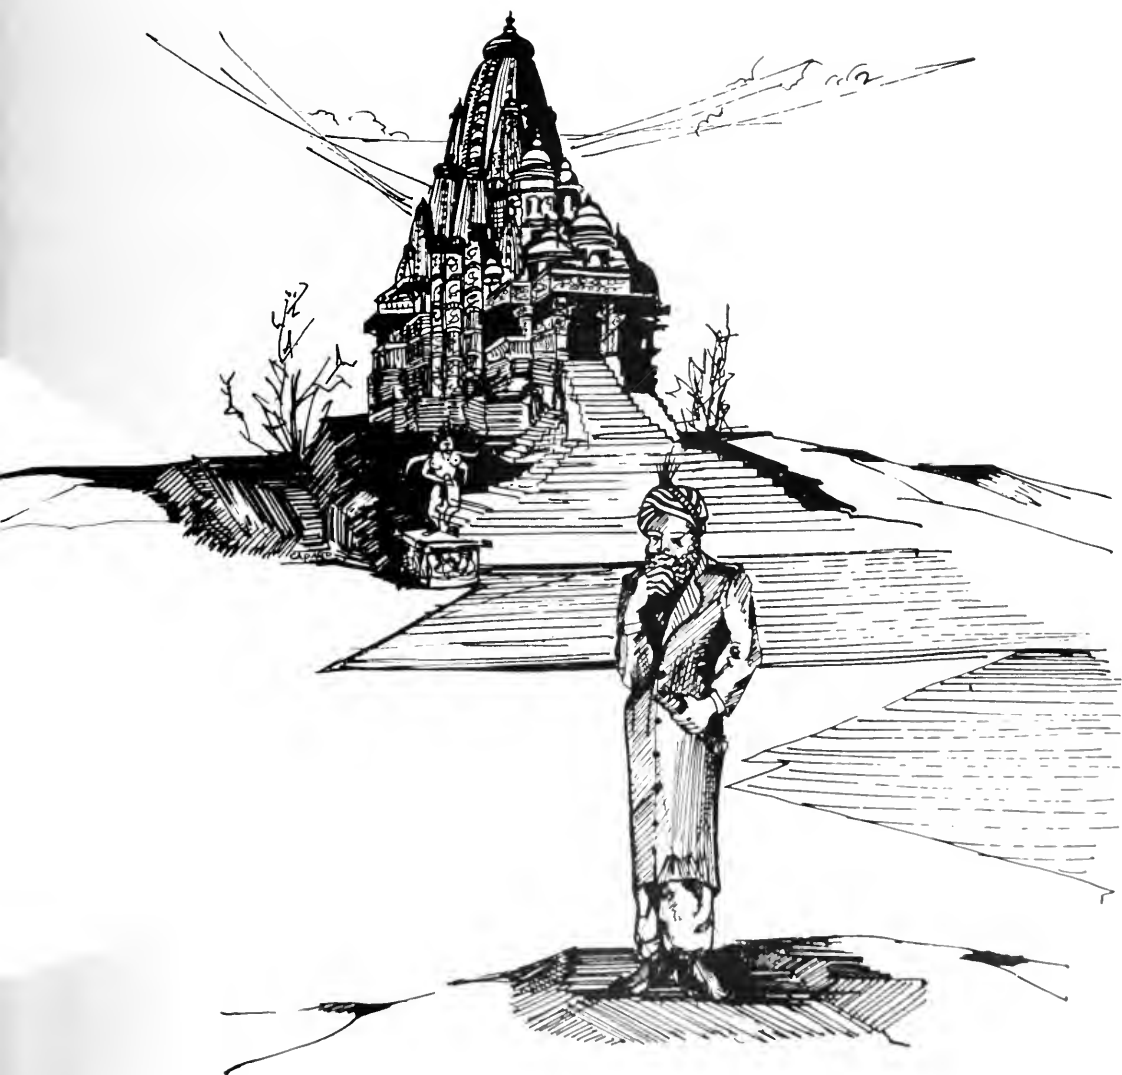

Like all the truly devoted, she keeps behind a serene and unobtrusive personality, the vastness of her scope. The Senior Class of 1957 dedicates its yearbook to the vitality, depth and sincerity which are Marie Frazee.

Faculty

E. DE ALTON PARTRIDGE, Ph.D.
President

OTIS C. INGBRITSEN, PH.D.
Chairman of the Graduate Committee
(Retired in December, 1956)

EARL C. DAVIS, PH.D.
Director of Personnel and Guidance

CLYDE M. HUBER, PH.D.
Dean of Instruction

KEITH W. ATKINSON, PH.D.
Director of College High School

Administration

THREE DIVISIONS make up the Administration cycle: business, instructional and personnel. The business division has charge of the ever important college finances. College curricula and scholastic affairs are encompassed by the instructional administration. Personnel members assume the responsibility for the health and social life of Montclair's students. These many faceted areas combine under the guiding arm of the Administrative Council, to lead students in the best possible direction.

EDWARD J. AMBRY, A.M.
Director of the Summer, Part time and Extension Division and Director of the New Jersey State School of Conservation

MARGARET A. SHERWIN, A.M.

Senior Class Adviser

THOSE WHO FOLLOW A PATH must always look to one who has traveled it before them. We, the class of 1957, were guided along our way by the sincere assistance of Mr. Edward Ambry, Adviser. He accepted our problems with the good spirit that is familiar to all who have ever associated with him. Whatever our plan or choice as a group, Mr. Ambry wanted it to be the richest in experience, the most beneficial in effect. It will be good to remember him as part of this cycle of existence.

Fantone, Sheft

AUDIO-VISUAL AIDS

The two faculty members who constitute the Audio-Visual Aids Department hold, in a sense, the key to successful teaching. They place at our disposal, not only the mechanical devices which enrich and highlight any subject, but also their own time and invaluable experience in the use of these aids. Whoever has turned to this department for assistance knows how important a part it plays in preparing us to merit the name of Teacher.

Emma Fantone, A.M., Dept. Head;
Sheft, A.M.

BUSINESS

The Business Department constantly strives to create the businesslike atmosphere of a modern day office in its classes. It would seem that no areas are left untouched, for everything which could possibly benefit its students comes to them through the Business curriculum. Activities here are always directed to the future: progressive methods, more efficient systems, highly developed machines. This atmosphere of beneficial change typifies Montclair's forward look.

ENGLISH

Because it deals with human communication, the English Department touches every other subject in the college curriculum. Its faculty strives to expose and perfect the creative, as well as the appreciative abilities of its students, and to penetrate the language difficulties which sometimes obstruct basic meaning. The students give an equal share of enthusiasm and loyalty to their subject and instructors. All who belong to this department belong to everything Montclair represents.

FINE ARTS

The young and rapidly growing Fine Arts Department provides students with a double advantage. Not only are they able to express themselves creatively, but they enjoy the use of four modern studios in the beautiful new classroom building. These facilities, directed and supplemented by a strong professional faculty, make possible a wide range of experimentation in all the phases of art. Here traditional and modern forms receive a just treatment. The spirit of art is preserved and venerated, for personal, professional and scholastic satisfaction.

GEOGRAPHY

This department will take you around the world in four years. Dr. Milstead and Mr. Boucher, MSTC's chief global adherents, specialize in scintillating field trips. Wizards of the mapboards, they lead you to the darkest corners of the earth and back—all in one hour. If to see much is to know much, the Geography Department provides excellent opportunity.

Harley P. Milstead, Ph.D., Dept. Head;
Bertrand P. Boucher, A.M.

FIELD STUDIES

The intrigue of far places forms the basic foundation of the Field Studies Department. Building upon this intrigue, the department arranges tours and programs which will provide a learning experience made more meaningful and lasting through pleasant activities. Our professional stature is increased by awareness of the customs and surroundings forming other civilizations.

Ross, Calcia, Vernacchia, Lockwood, Osgood

Milstead, Boucher

Reynolds, Hall

HOME ECONOMICS

Although the Home Economics Department is in its infancy, it has many assets: a new building, a dream kitchen, sewing machines, and a luxurious living-room. Under the supervision of its two faculty members, the students attend conferences in many colleges. The results of such activity and vision here can be measured by the pride which the department creates in those outside of, as well as within, its program.

Katharine B. Hall, Ph.D., Dept. Head;
Reynolds, A.M.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Industrial Arts is another of the new departments which promises good things for its members and for Montclair. Through Industrial Arts the wonderful work of honest, gifted hands has been accorded its proper place. Sometimes hurried, and often lacking space and equipment, students and instructors in this field have always managed to contribute to the improvement of the college, and do credit to their own abilities.

INTEGRATION

By helping us to adjust to the unfamiliar, the Integration Department fulfills one-half of its purpose. In addition to settling us in college, and preparing us for the complete change from student to teacher, it must instill in us the history of education, its problems, attitudes and standards. That the department and its members succeed in all ways is shown by the high esteem tendered the graduates of Montclair.

LANGUAGE

French, Latin and Spanish are offered to those who wish to progress beyond "Le chapeau de ma tante," "El burro es un animal," and "Amo, amas, amat". For a few, there is a year of study in foreign lands. The faculty and students of the language department find reward in uncovering the common bond of man as it lies veiled in strange words, customs and garments.

Germain Poreau Cressey, A.M., Acting Dept. Head; Bock, Ph.D.; de Escoriaza, A.M.; Goodman, A.M.; Knecht, A.M.; Tonone, A.M.

MATHEMATICS

A spirit of harmony between teacher and students best characterizes the Mathematics Department at Montclair. Activity and industry reign here in a quiet, unobtrusive fashion. Parties, picnics and publications unite all who are part of the department. Professional capability abounds to show its disciples how to lead.

MUSIC

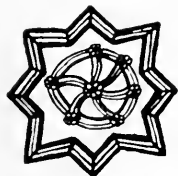

The Music Department of Montclair stimulates the musical development of the college and community through choir, orchestra, band, opera workshop, small ensemble groups, and faculty recitals. Student recitals given by the graduating seniors are the highlight of their careers here. The constancy, dedication and artistic merit of its music-makers have gained for the whole college an abundance of merit.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

The Physical Education Department finds that discipline of the body is beneficial also to the mind. The department is dedicated to the ideals of good sense, sportsmanship, and health through a balanced program of activity. Every physical education student knows how much of himself he must contribute to the fulfillment of these ideals, in his own life, and in the lives of those he will direct.

SCIENCE

Members of the Science Department, while divided into two major groups, still maintain a unity, a sense of family, among themselves. Together they devote long hours to the field which is aimed exclusively at the betterment of Mankind. Individual progress always contributes to the collective advancement of the group. Practical, alert, visionary, these science teachers, present and future, know how to enjoy life as well as to probe its mysteries.

SOCIAL STUDIES

"The Social Studies Department strives to give its individuals a broad knowledge of the world in which they live," is a philosophy expressed by Dr. Moffat, head of the department. This aim, spiced with such delicacies as Dr. Folsom's "significance" and Dr. Fincher's knowledge of the presidency, has won for the department a cherished place in the memories of its students.

SPEECH

Small size does not limit the achievements of the Speech Department. Each member has directed his efforts at self-analysis and improvement before even attempting to guide others. In this department, the learning is by doing. Activities are varied and practical, capabilities extensive, ideals high and worthy. Working together, faculty and students have enhanced Montclair's reputation through their fine advances in perfecting the verbal means by which the human mind expresses itself.

LIBRARY STAFF

Ready, willing and able best describe the librarians at MSTC. Many of us have taken advantage of their ability to give us "on-the-spot" reference, quick loan desk service, access to special collections, and an ever-constant supply of ink. Together they maintain an institution which serves us practically, through usage, and spiritually, through our remembrance and realizations.

MEDICAL

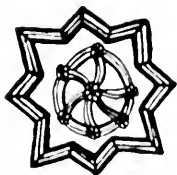

It is reassuring to know that one can find help should the need arise. In cases of emergency or routine health problems, Montclair's Medical Department maintains an energetic, well-trained staff to meet the daily calls which are an integral phase of life.

SENIORS

Senior Class History

HAVING FILLED OUR COLLEGE DAYS with a maximum of activity we might sometime have difficulty recalling it all, or distinguishing in our minds one year from another. Here is the place to set down the outstanding characteristics, as well as the underlying moods, of old times.

The class of 1957 first knew Montclair when it was a quiet unmarked campus, not yet acquainted with parking problems, and mountains of lumber and multitudes of excavations. Hazing, "orientation", getting settled, meeting people, were the problems that confronted us Freshmen. As time fled, we gained the sense of belonging and began to work as a class. We sponsored a class social in the old Rec building. Originators of the basketball games between classes, we presented one with the Sophomores in December. Our talent show in February followed January's informal dance. The informal will be best remembered for the sleet which welcomed and crowned it. Another social "first" was our square dance in March. To this we invited outsiders as a group, and all who attended counted it a success. "Spring Time Serenade", the Freshman formal in April, and the Freshman-Sophomore class picnic, fittingly closed a busy, enlightening year.

Being Sophomores filled us with individual and collective pride. We had a minor, as well as a major to occupy us. Into packed schedules we allotted time to build an original float for Homecoming—"We Knew You Were Coming So We Baked a Cake", and time to run our second square dance in November, an informal in February, and a semi-formal in April at the Glen Ridge Country Club. Rain rivaled every affair, but failed to dilute the enthusiasm and capacity for enjoyment which had become the outstanding part of our reputation. National Sophomore Examinations brought us closer to our goal by indicating how strongly we stood among other college students in many fields. As the year ended with Carnival time, for which the Sophomore Class did award-winning work, and the Soph-Frosh picnic at Kettle's Field, many of us paused to look forward as well as behind.

Having "little brothers and sisters" gave us, as brand new Juniors, a taste of responsibility. It also introduced new blood into the lives of a few! Our experience was expanded by Junior Week. How different we were after that visit. We seemed to possess more assurance; certainly our convictions received a boost once we opened the door to our own high or elementary school years, and perhaps actually conducted classes. Passing SCUM, finding a parking place, avoiding mud-holes, and hopefully cheering the building program to a speedy completion absorbed each of us. The Men's Dorm was available for occupation, and we pitched in to improve the excavated, torn grounds around it. The Juniors came out on top in their basketball game with the Sophs. The great March snowstorm afforded two days of unexpected vacation, and saved many a mark for Juniors whose schedules were bursting at the seams. With characteristic fervor we contributed to making the Carnival one of the most successful in Montclair's history. Choosing possible practice-teaching situations focused our vision on the culmination of four years' activity. Serious and watchful, some of us attended Commencement exercises and realized how soon we would be at the end.

A letter from the class president to the Seniors of Montclair began our final year even before we returned to campus. Traveling daily from the old building to the new, we moved in two worlds. Methods and subject matter, a hayride and a picnic, and a January informal highlighted the first semester. Then the supreme moment, Practice-teaching. We entered it determined to succeed. We returned in the spring, each of us successful in some way. Senior Week—an unforgettable Senior Assembly, Senior Ball, held at Shackamaxon Country Club in New Jersey, and a picnic instead of the traditional boatripe to Bear Mountain—climaxed our group existence.

We of the class of 1957 have seen that long ago promise of academic achievement, professional awareness and the nebulous term "college life" take root, nurture and grow during these exciting years. Because of such attainment we can branch upward and outward with confidence and pride.

SPORTS

Football

The Watchung Indians opened the season with a defeat at the hands of Brockport State, but not to be dismayed, bounced back to down National Agricultural and Cheyney by a handy margin. New Britain ended the two game streak, but following that game, the "Big Red" was not downed again until the November 10 meeting with Kutztown. The Montclair men also suffered a loss to Wilson in the last game of the season.

Our traditional rivals, Trenton State, were well stomped at Homecoming, 13-0, lifting the school spirits in spite of an overall 4-4 record for the season.

Great expectations are held for the coming 1957 season due to the general all-around improvement of the team this year.

"The Thirty Club was the backbone of the team," said Coach Coder, "because they have at last put football first and are training fully."

Baseball

From the first whizzing ball across the plate until the alumni banquet, Montclair's baseball squad enjoyed a highly successful season which was the result of long, hard practices under the steady hand of Coach William Dioguardi.

The club again traveled South to limber up for the coming season and to enjoy Southern hospitality. Although the Indians had tough luck on their Dixieland tour, donning a 1-3 record, they bounced back during the season with a splendid 16-7 tally. The highlight was an 8 game victory streak from the 2nd Rider game through the St. Peter's game.

Besides mound stars, the "Big Red" could boast of excellent hitting and fielding throughout most of the season, making MSTC champs once more (making six championships out of eight years) under Dioguardi's piloting.

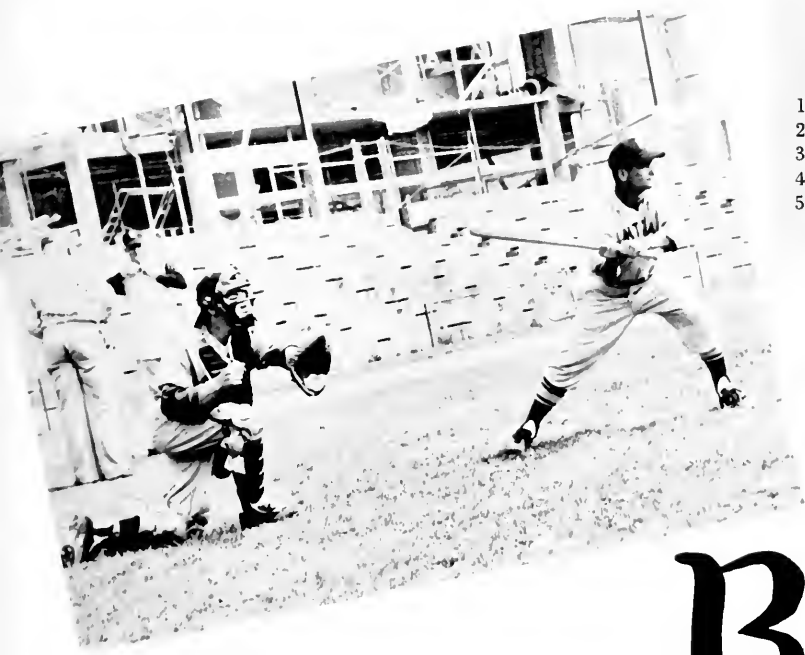

A new addition to the baseball scene was a plaque presented to the outstanding man on the team, having those qualities of sportsmanship, leadership, thoughtfulness, drive and spirit, which resembled MSTC's own alumni member and manager ('49-'50) Charlie Turek, who recently passed away. The award, in honor and memory of Turek, was given for the first time to Mr. John Gray by Coach Dioguardi at the annual alumni banquet.

The "Big Red" coach, Dioguardi, can look into the future with visions of more and more success, due to the excellent showing of this year's team.

ASEBALL

Track

Under the more than adequate supervision of Coach Richard Willing, MSTC turned out another better than average track team. In true team spirit, the men feel that most of the credit for the consistently good showings during the past season belongs to Coach Willing. The main objective of the team was to begin the process of building itself up for the future, and the fruits of their labors began to show signs of merit. For the 8th year MSTC took first place in the NJIAC Meet, then proceeded indoors to take a second place in the Collegiate Track Conference Meet, beating out many of its local rivals in the biggest event of the small college circuit.

With a portion of the old nucleus plus an up-and-coming group of underclassmen, Coach Willing is building for another fine track season at MSTC.

T RACK

Cross Country

Montclair harriers again brought home the bacon as they took first place in their own Montclair Invitation Meet, beating Upsala. These "unsung heroes" of the cinders deserve praise for their unswerving devotion to long practices and hard work. Every student at the college has caught sight of MSTC's Cross Country boys running faithfully every day, in fair weather and in foul, over the lawns, through the parking lots, up hills, through construction materials and what-have-you, building up the stamina and muscle coordination necessary to produce such a fine showing in actual competition.

Montclair State need not worry about the future of her Cross Country team, for a strong Frosh contingent, which took first place in the LoMayne Invitation meet, beating the Iona Freshman team, will return again, older, wiser, and greater than before.

Basketball

The Montclair tutors started out slowly in the '56-'57 season. At the end of ten games they had compiled a 5-5 record. Finally it looked as though the team began to operate as a unit and brought the average up to 9 wins and 7 losses.

Clem Tennaro, the club's only senior, racked in 47 points against Newark State to establish a new individual scoring record for Montclair. This team was the first to down Upsala in a major sport in quite a time, as well as being the first in quite a while to whip Panzer.

The J.V.'s have only lost two games this year, one to Upsala, one to Panzer.

Our hats certainly go off to Coach Ed Weber and Coach Henry E. Schmidt in aiding Willing to produce such a fine group of young men.

Golf

Under the able tutelage of MSTC's "old golf pro," Mr. De Rosa, senior co-captains Ozzie Del Venton and Bill Halloran forward the growing reputation of this group, keeping an able eye on the up-and-coming underclassmen who will fill the spots left vacant by the graduating seniors.

With a firm, positive conviction of their capabilities, the golf team fully expects to retain their N.J.I.A. Conference championship and to keep piling up honors on the Essex County West Course.

Tennis

A new group consisting of mainly underclassmen attracted much attention to the Tennis team this year. Bob Leonard, Bill Terry, Louie Ehardt, and Fred Bednarek have, under the guiding hand of Dr. Seymour Fersh, presented MSTC with a winning combination, as they downed many local teams this season to gain a 7-5 record.

Bowling

Despite the fact that this is only the first year that MSTC's bowling team has been a member of The Eastern Intercollegiate Bowling Conference, led by seniors Bill Halloran and Dick Stevenson, they have downed such name colleges as Fordham, St. John's, and Columbia, to attain a high position among Conference standings.

Bill Utter, captain of the MSTC kegler squad, leads the league with an average of 185.

Possessing a nucleus composed of two student representatives and three faculty members, the achievements of this organization have given it an unestimable value. MAC supervises, finances, and coordinates all men's college athletics and has succeeded in building a fine, reputable name for Montclair State in the world of college sports.

Thirty Club

This three year old organization has finally realized a long sought for goal—a football program. These year-round gridmen took it upon themselves to solicit advertising and to publish the program, giving much satisfaction in the finished product. The aim of the organization is: to keep an eye trained on football during the off season so that a scientific game might be a victory for MSTC in the future. The men help Dr. Coder plan for the trips and transportation involved in away games. They have arranged meetings with other prominent coaches in the vicinity. Thirty Club makes it possible to take movies of all of the home games so that seeing themselves in action, the men may correct their own mistakes.

Ken Miscia was awarded the "Most Valuable Player" award given by the club this year.

Acknowledgments

To express thanks to all those who shaped this book is a difficult task, for our gratitude is deeper than mere words. . . .

Our sincere thanks are due:

To MR. NICHOLAS ICKES of Ickes-Annals for infinite patience, inexhaustible suggestions, and unfailing optimism

To MR. HARRY RONNIE, for his ability to create a finished product from a wisp of an idea

To MRS. CARLOTTE WRAY and Sarony Studios, Inc., for their cooperative spirit in the photographic representation of life at MSTC in 1957

To SANDY WOLFF, our student photographer, for his remarkable talent for fine pictures at a moment's notice; and also to DON ANDERSON and WALTER COLLENDER for additional contributions

To the Administration, Faculty, and Student Body for their willingness to rearrange their daily routines for our benefit.
